

INTERNATIONAL NETWORK OF FOOD EDUCATION PROGRAMS

Travel around the world and meet your colleagues: share best practices, view a class, build on your school program

INTERNATIONAL NETWORK OF FOOD EDUCATION PROGRAMS

About the network tool:
The International Network of Food Education Programs

Is an interactive map of worldwide food education programs that provide tools, resources, online classroom material to all interested in these programs. Let's collaborate to increase science education and important issues on food sustainability.

The actual product will have clickable icons to explore

Examples of resources you can find in this interactive map and many more!

Worldwide Conference on Food education(i.e. agriculture and science education)

Help in creating the first ever international conference on farm to school (and/or similar type) programs where you can meet people in person and share information and ideas!

Please submit your program to us by e-mail and what topic you would like to present.

Why join? Why become a member and importantly why become involved in the on-going research on food/science education programs?

Your membership will provide important benefits such as learning from others and being able to use that information in your class, etc..Also, if interested your program/school, can be a apart of a collaborative research project on improving science education for our future generation and possibly develop future global leaders in this field.
